

From: Bill Hirsh - ALRP
To: Jim McBride
Subject: Evictions are still happening to people with HIV/AIDS
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2020 10:09:39 AM

It's hard to shelter-in-place when you are being evicted.

Hello Jim,

Despite the current “ban” on evictions in San Francisco, ALRP is fighting a landlord who is seeking to evict a severely disabled client under the health and safety exception to the current court “holiday” on evictions, despite there being no allegations of violence or threats to the health and safety of other tenants in the eviction lawsuit.

The lawsuit alleges that the client is often heard crying throughout the building, a symptom of his disability, but the client has never been violent and has not made any threats to their neighbors or their landlord.

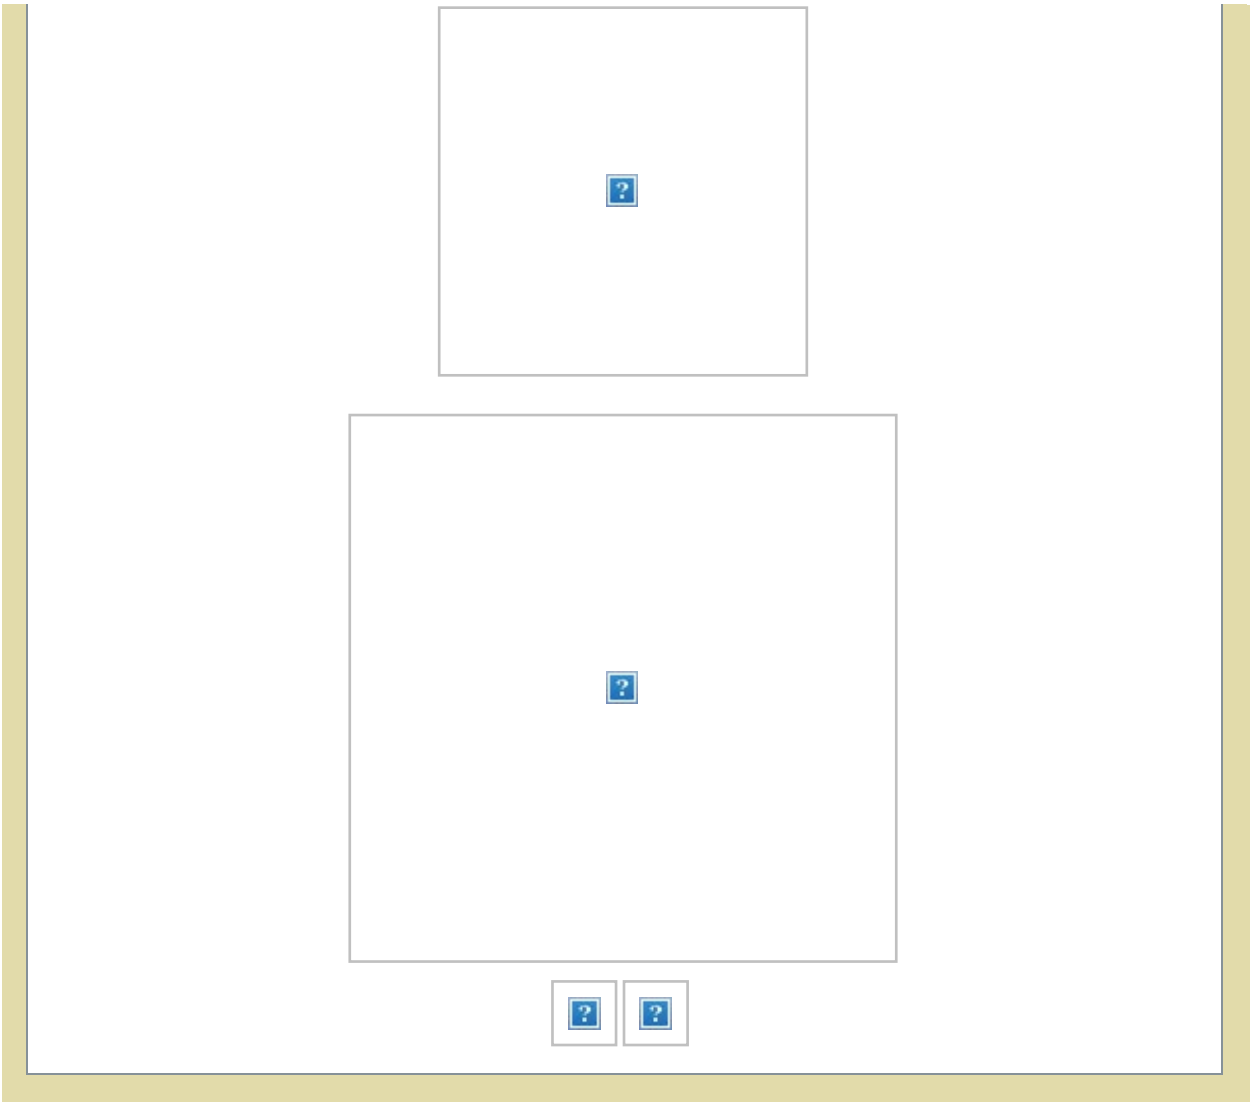

Luckily, an ALRP Housing Attorney filed a motion challenging the lawsuit and the court calendared the argument in June – well after the court holiday has ended.

Please let this victory be a reminder that although some landlords are following the current rules regarding evictions, others are still seeking to evict clients despite the current health emergency the City is facing.
For now this client still has a home!

COVID-19 poses a serious threat to the health of people living with HIV.
More than ever, our clients need a good attorney on their side.
Sadly, we expect a wave of evictions to hit, once the current “pause” on evictions is past.

This virus is also dramatically affecting ALRP’s fundraising to support our legal services; we are seeing cancelled events, event sponsorships declined, and government funding cuts looming. ALRP needs your help - NOW.

ALRP remains open and continues to provide essential services to our clients. In times of crisis, it is people like YOU who step up and make a difference.

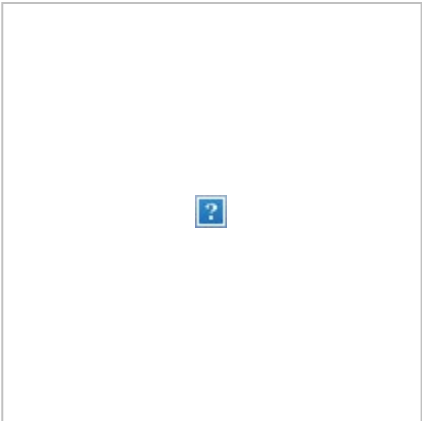

AIDS Legal Referral Panel | 1663 Mission Street, Suite 500, San Francisco, CA 94103

Unsubscribe jim@alrp.org

Update Profile | About Constant Contact

Sent by bill@alrp.org in collaboration with

Try email marketing for free today!

